DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election with traverse of Group I, Claims 1-3 and 6-10, filed on 5/19/05 is acknowledged and upon further consideration by the examiner, the previous Restriction requirement (filed on 4/19/05) has been withdrawn in view of the following Restriction.
2. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
  - I. Claims 1-3 and 6-10, drawn to a method of producing a helical coil chip, classified in class 29, subclass 602. 1.
  - II. Claims 4-5 and 12-13, drawn a helical coil chip, classified in class 336, subclass 200.
  - III. Claim 11, drawn to a collective substrate, classified in class 257, subclass 531.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case, the helical coil chip can be made by using a laser etching process.

Inventions II and III are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention II has separate utility such as a helical coil chip not using a substrate of invention III. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

3. If applicant elects the invention of Group I, a further Restriction is required:

I-A. Claims 1-3, drawn to a method of producing a helical coil chip, classified in class 29, subclass 602.1;

I-B. Claims 6-10, drawn to an alternative method of producing a helical coil chip, classified in class 29, subclass 872.

4. The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I-A and I-B are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because the method of producing a helical coil chip, as recited in Group I-A, does not require a limitation of arranging the wires on the upper and lower surfaces of the substrate to extend in the same direction, as required by Group I-B. The subcombination, Invention I-B, has separate utility such as reconstructing the cut substrate as a collective substrate by means of adhesive and supplemental members.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Groups I-A and I-B or vice versa, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

5. A telephone call was made to Raymond F. Cardillo, Jr. (703-413-3000) on 6/03/05 to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement, but did not result in an election being made.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
